Thomas Welch, President and CEO of Bullzi Holdings, Inc. stated, "The diversity of being in multiple industry sectors will provide three primary benefits: a greater selection of companies to acquire, a reduction of risk as the Company's assets will be spread throughout multiple industries or sectors, and a wider population of potential shareholders, whose interest may be in one of the new sectors that we enter."

Mr. Welch went on to say, "While each of the current businesses are engaged in only B2B transactions, many of the new acquisition targets will be consumer-based. We believe that this new strategy will not only result in greater revenues and profits for the company, but it will also provide a heightened level of interest for the public stock."
